MNN. July 27, 2023. Work to uncover human remains has stopped. Search dogs detected human remains on June 9th in front of the Hersey Pavilion of the old Royal Victoria Hospital RVH in Montreal. On July 25th 2023 Indigenous elders and cultural monitors were aggressed by security guards. At approximately 15:30 the Kanienâ??keha:ka Kahnistensera (Mohawk Mothers) and Indigenous cultural monitors were preparing to leave work. The cultural monitors observe work being done to uncover human remains at the RVH, as provided by a Settlement Agreement between the Kanienâ??keha:ka Kahnistensera (Mohawk Mothers) and a slew of Defendants, including the SociÃ©tÃ© quÃ©bÃ©coise des infrastructures (SQI) and McGill University. An 22 to halt excavation work for the New Vic project to sear ed by medical experiments in the 1950â??s and 1960â??s.

Cultural monitors were present when Historic Human Remains Detection Dogs (HHRDD) and Ground Penetr.

One Mohawk Mother went to talk with them while the other cultural monitors were finishing a meeting and preparing to leave. One of the security guards, a female, presented herself as the â??bossâ?• of SQI security. She immediately threatened to call the police to usher the Mohawk Mothers and cultural monitors off the site. The Mohawk Mother was shocked by the aggressive tone of the women and her haste to throw out kanienkehaka Mohawk observers when office hours were not even over yet. She reminded the security guards that Mohawk monitors were present as part of a court order and a settlement agreement to make sure excavation work was consistent with Indigenous protocols regarding burial sites and to conduct ceremonies. The woman said she knew nothing about it and aggressively insisted that everyone vacate the site immediately. She dialed the police. The Mohawk Mother then informed the rest of the group about what was happening. They had not been directly notified to immediately leave. One person opened his telephone to record the incident. When the â??bossâ?• saw that she was being filmed by someone, she brutally jumped on him, grabbed the telephone from his hands and gave it to her colleague, who erased it. Another person present then realized the gravity of the situation and turned on his camera from afar. The video, available here â?? https://ufile.io/v27xu0al â?? shows some of the outrageous insults that the SQI security used against the Indigenous elders and cultural monitors as they were leaving the site, to avoid being subjected to violence. They were told that the police would â??squish you outâ?•, that they should â??go and have some kidsâ?• and â??go and get a life because I donâ??t think you have a lifeâ?•, and to â??go back to your kids if you have any, I donâ??t think you have anyâ?•.

Mohawk Mother Kahentinetha responded â??what about our kids that were murdered and that youâ??re benefiting from?â?• The security lady said â??Thatâ??s right, weâ??re benefiting from it. Thatâ??s exactly rightâ?•. This violent incident was highly traumatic for the Indigenous 84 year old Mohawk Mother Kahentinetha, reacted to the events by explaining that â??our law and our culture forbids us from exposing our people to elder abuse, mental stress and physical threats. We. cannot carry out our duties as cultural monitors under duress and the threat of violence. We devoted all our energies to investigating the truth about what was being done to our children at this hospital so we want to continue the work immediately. Our people need answers to our questions about what happened with those security guards and whether they were instructed to use such aggression with usâ?•.

Mohawk Mother Kwetiio added: â??Itâ??s common decency to secure the site with a firm that doesnâ??t end up attacking our elders, alleging that they are unaware of who we are and why we are present on the site. If we had not been there McGill and SQI would already be constructing their vast project on our land, ignoring the human remains that were detected thanks to our efforts and that of our allies and experts. An investigation must be immediately conducted on whether the security guards were instructed to assault usâ?•. For more information, contact kah

And this he told me
â??Iâ??m going on down to Yasgurâ??s farm
